DNS might be unavailable

I'm a student living in a student house. This is my current internet setup: My laptop is connected to a wifi network generated by a Sitecom X8 AC1750 router. This router is connected to a UPC Technicolor TC7200 wifi modem downstairs via an ethernet cable. This setup has been working just fine for months now, until I come home one day, I try to connect my laptop to the internet. I notice that the internet isn't working so I run a network troubleshooting and it gives me this message: Your DNS server might be unavailable. So I go onto the wifi network generated by the UPC modem instead (which is working just fine, but it's a little slow) and google the error message. I follow the instructions on different articles and try all the solutions they suggest. What I've tried; I decided to sleep over it and try again the next day. Now when I run the Windows network diagnostics troubleshooter I don't get the message DNS server unavailable but this one: Your computer appears to be correctly configured, but the device or resource (www.microsoft.com) is not responding. I've also looked up this message, and it's basically giving me the same solutions as before. I don't know what to do anymore, so if anyone has some tips please help!
